The eyes of Sauk war leader Black Hawk forever survey the landscape of his homelands through a life-size bust on display at the Apple River Fort in Elizabeth, Illinois.

Settlers in 1832 hastily erected the fort as protection during the Black Hawk conflict and it bears the distinction of being the only fort Black Hawk himself attacked.

NAGPRA & HISTORIC PRESERVATION

In October of last year the paper ran a story about our own NAGPRA/Historic Preservation worker Sandra Massey (pictured below). She will be appearing on the PBS show History Detectives during is 7th season, which begins on June 22.

Now that our own department is about to get some national recognition you might be tempted to ask... What does that department do anyway? Glad you asked! The following is a synopsis of what this department does.

The Historic Preservation Office implements federal laws to protect our graves and historic and sacred sites:

NAGPRA - The Native American Graves Protection and Repatriation Act signed into law on November 15, 1990 provides for the repatriation and return of Native American human remains, funerary objects, sacred objects, and objects of cultural patrimony from museums and federal agencies to lineal descendants, culturally affiliated tribes, and Native Hawaiian organizations. This department has repatriated our people from juseums in Illinois, Missouri, Kansas, Pennsylvania, Iowa, and Massachusetts with reburials in or as close to the original burial site.

NHPA - The National Historic Preservation Act of 1966 states that "the spirit and direction of the Nation are founded upon and reflected in its historic heritage" and "the historical and cultural foundations of the Nation should be preserved as a living part of our community life and development". Through this law, particularly Section 106, tribes must be contacted for commentary prior to any undertaking on our historic properties.

STRATEGIC PLANNING

A Vision for Our
Sac and Fox Nation

The Nation's last formal strategic planning effort was in 1992. At that time, tribal leaders sent out a Needs Assessment to our members and interviewed them for their input. Using that information, the leadership laid out a Ten-Year Plan that was adopted by General Council.

That plan served as a guide for several generations of Principal Chiefs, Business Committees and tribal leaders. The key areas of that plan were economic development, tribal services, facilities, education and cultural heritage. That 1992 10-year plan has served us well for nearly two decades. But that was seventeen years ago! While much has been accomplished, much is left to do. We, and the world around us, have changed. It is time for a new vision, a new plan, for current priorities based upon who we are today and who we expect to be decades from now, as a Nation, a people and individual tribal members.

With this in mind the Business Committee is launching a strategic visioning effort over the next few months that will result in a new set of priorities being determined. We have engaged Bob Workman

EDITORIALS

Dear Tribal Members,

I recently attended the 2009 Annual Tribal Self-Governance Department of the Interior & Department of Health and Human Services Conference “Shaping Our Future in a New Era of Leadership” in Orlando, Florida along with Committeeperson Stella Nanaeto, Self-Governance Director Jellene Factor, and Self-Governance Specialist Debbie Hicks. I was privileged to give the Welcome Address to open the conference and also serve as a Moderator for a concurrent break out session panel - Coming Together on Self-Governance: Working with the Non-BIA Bureaus within the Department of the Interior. I thank Sandra Massey, Historic Preservation Officer, for researching and preparing “talking points” for me to use during this session and Ms. Factor and Ms. Hicks for volunteering to serve as Recorders for some of the break out sessions. Our Sac and Fox Nation was proud to be a sponsor of the conference. This kept our Nation before the Self-Governance tribes in the United States, because we were one of the first Self-Governance tribes behind the great leader, Merle Boyd. Paula Williams and Eugenia Tyner-Dawson were also instrumental in the movement for self determination, so I take this opportunity to personally thank everyone previously mentioned and your families for the work and sacrifices endured.

My attendance at this conference has led me to share with our membership what tribal governments do to prepare for negotiations of their Annual Funding Agreements (AFA). I will attempt to give you an overview in two parts, June (Part 1) and July (Part 2). The SFN will be preparing for our negotiations that have yet to be set for the month of June or July.

Self-Governance: A Way of Life

The United States Constitution recognizes Indian nations as governments. Hundreds of treaties, federal law and court cases have re-affirmed that Indian nations retain the inherent power to govern themselves. In 1975, the Indian Self-Determination and Education Assistance Act (ISDEAA) was signed into law. The landmark legislation recognized the primacy of the government-to-government relationship between the United States and sovereign tribal nations. The ISDEAA was enacted to ensure “effective and meaningful participation by the Indian people in the planning, conduct, and administration” of federal services and programs provided to the tribes and their members, 25 U.S.C. 450a(b). The ISDEAA provides tribes the option to exercise self-determination by either assuming from IHS the administration and operation of health services and programs in their communities or remaining within the IHS administered direct health system.

In 1992, the IHS was instructed by Congress to initiate budget research and planning activities with tribal governments as authorized by Pub. L. No. 100-472. Through enactment of Public Law 102-573, the Indian Health Care Amendments of 1992, authority to fund the Tribal Self-Governance Demonstration Project (TSGDP) was extended to IHS and the Office of Tribal Self-Governance was established. Through enactment of Public Law 106-260, the Tribal Self-Governance Amendments of 2000, permanent authority was given to the IHS under Title V, Tribal Self-Governance. Tribal Self-Governance has created opportunities for tribes to exercise their inherent self-governing powers. Self-Governance returns decision-making authority and management responsibilities to tribes and their governing bodies. Self-Governance is about change through the transfer of federal funding available for programs, services, functions, and activities to control. Tribes are accountable to their own people for resource management, service delivery, and development.

Since implementation of the first Self-Governance Compact and Funding Agreement on September 30, 1993, the interest and growth in Self-Governance is astonishing. As of February 2009, there are currently 328 tribes (representing 58% of all federally recognized tribes) participating in Self-Governance with 2 additional tribes conducting planning and negotiation activities under grants awarded from the Office of Tribal self-Governance.

Self-Governance is not just another legislative initiative or tribal program. It is a way of life for tribal nations today. Under Self-Governance, tribes are allowed to take their program funds, along with funds that were used by the federal government to manage the contracts or direct services, and manage them as best benefits their community.

Why is Self-Governance a success? Under Self-Governance, program funds, control and accountability are pushed as close to the delivery of the services as possible. At the local level, tribal leaders and tribal members care most about their people and communities. Given the opportunity to make decisions regarding priority of funding and the subsequent design and delivery of program services, tribal governments will do what is best for their members and community.

Steps Required Under Self-Governance

As authorized in Pub. L. 106-260, the Self-Governance Act, and the accompanying final published regulations, there are three major components to the Self-Governance initiative. The components include the: (1) planning phase, (2) negotiations process, and (3) actual implementation.

Planning: The Self-Governance Act requires that, “Each Indian tribe seeking participation in Self-Governance shall complete a planning phase. The planning phase shall be conducted to the satisfaction of the Indian tribe and shall include – (1) legal and budgetary research; and (2) internal tribal government planning and organizational preparation relating to the administration of health care programs.”

Eligibility Criteria: The Self-Governance Act makes provision for existing Self-Governance tribes to participate in Self-Governance should they elect to do so. This law also stipulates that each year an additional 50 Indian tribes may meet the eligibility criteria shall be entitled to participate in Self-Governance. Eligibility criteria include the following: (A) successfully complete a planning phase to the satisfaction of the tribe (as noted above); (B) request participation in Self-Governance by resolution or other official action by the governing body of each tribe to be served; and (C) have demonstrated for 3 fiscal years, financial stability and financial management capability.

Negotiations Process: Both the Self-Governance Act and subsequent final enacted Title V regulations contain specific detailed provisions related to the negotiation process – including, but not limited to: Compacts, Funding Agreements, Final Offer, Multi-Year Funding, and the Appeals process. Negotiations have been, and remain, a dynamic, evolving, and tribally-driven process that involves tribal and HIS representatives and the Office of Tribal Self-Governance (OTSG). Negotiations require careful planning and preparation by both sides and timely, accurate information. Negotiations are conducted on a government-to-government basis and each tribal situation is unique requiring careful review and deliberation to ensure that each tribe receives fair consideration in the negotiations process.

Negotiations bring tribal and Federal teams to the table under government-to-government relationship. At negotiations, tribal and federal teams discuss each tribe’s progress and problems under Self-Governance and work through issues to reach agreements on each tribe’s Compact (in initial negotiations) and Funding Agreements (in subsequent negotiations). Sections 504 and 505 of Title V require IHS to negotiate a Compact and Funding Agreement with each tribe that participates in Self-Governance. These negotiations provide opportunities for both sides to work together to make each Self-Governance agreement a good partnership.

Negotiations are the method of determining and agreeing upon terms and provisions of a tribe’s Compact and Funding Agreement, including the tribe’s share of the programs to be included in the Funding Agreement. In theory, the underlying materials (including the negotiation financial tables) should be shared and agreed upon early in the negotiations process. When the facts cannot be agreed upon, they become issues for negotiation. For the Self-Governance negotiations, these facts include complete program and budget information at all organizational levels of the IHS. Negotiations should not be concluded as an allocation process, but rather these budgets and issues should be mutually reviewed and discussed during the negotiations.

Next month I will report on more detailed information about the Negotiations Process.

Next month will be a very busy month as usual with the pow-wow, rodeo, golf tournament, primary election, and many more activities listed elsewhere in this month’s newspaper. Please make sure you vote and attend some of the tribal functions during the month of July! Be proud to be Sac and Fox! Aho! God Bless.

Sincerely,

George Thurman, Principal Chief

The original fort was torn down in 1847. The non-profit Apple River Fort Historic Foundation constructed a replica, based on archaeological evidence and research, and completed it in 1997, the same year the site was listed on the National Register of Historic Places. The State of Illinois has operated the fort as the Apple River Fort State Historic Site since 2001.

Carl “Skip” Schwerdtfeger, President of the Apple River Fort Foundation, is an historian who has been involved in the fort project since the beginning. One of his hopes for the fort is to provide a balanced account of the events of the Black Hawk conflict.

Part of telling both sides is to go straight to Black Hawk himself.

In 1996 the Foundation commissioned the bust from sculptor David Seagraves, a local artist. Schwerdtfeger gathered all the paintings he could of Black Hawk and told Seagraves “that most of them were done after many of his people had been massacred at Bad Axe [in Wisconsin]”. He asked that the pre-conflict power show in his eyes.

Black Hawk and the Sauk were no strangers to Seagraves, a resident of Elizabeth, Illinois but originally from St. Louis, Missouri, both tied to Sac and Fox history:

the former is part of Sac and Fox homeland and the Sauk spent extended stays in the latter.

“I like history,” he said about researching the history of the area.

He created the original bust out of mahogany in just a few weeks and chose to make it life-size. The original bust had been created to be raffled off as a fund-raiser for the foundation but is still on display at the fort.

Seagraves usually takes more time with his work, at least a month to allow time to “let it sit a few days” so he can return to it “with a fresh look”.

“I didn’t have time to ‘fuss’ with it,” he said of the mahogany likeness, but he entered it in the 32nd Annual International Woodcarvers’ Congress held at the Putnam Museum in Davenport, Iowa in 1997 where it won “Best of Show”.

He envisioned a vigorous Black Hawk in his late 50s “looking ‘dangerous’” and wanted to “represent the truth of a noble person.”

“He was proud and defiant,” Seagraves said.

In 2007 he worked on the bronze reduction offered for sale by the Apple River Fort at $135 with all proceeds going to the fort. This time he was able to spend more time on it, adding more detail to Black Hawk’s peace medal and beadwork.

Skip Schwerdtfeger presented a bronze replica to the Historic Preservation Offices of the Sac and Fox Nation of Oklahoma and the Sac and Fox Tribe of the Mississippi in Iowa as gifts to the Sac and Fox people.

Seagraves said he believes art has a little influence on perceptions of history, allowing an artist to give his own interpretation of history through his art and possibly help to set the record straight.

As he studied images and pondered the memory of Black Hawk and his people while preparing the piece, he felt an attitude developing: “that of Black Hawk seeking justice.”

Lyndee Jon McClellan-Tofpi “Tol-gho-Tsayn”

Lyndee Jon McClellan-Tofpi is of the Sac and Fox Nation and the Kiowa Tribes. Her Kiowa name is Tol-gho-Tsayn, meaning, “She’s Come A Long Way”. She was named in the tipi by her grandfather and namesake, Lindy Tofpi. Lyndee is 15 years old and is in the 10th grade attending Norman North High School. Lyndee’s greatest love is gymnastics! She is a Level 7/8 gymnast at Bart Conner Gymnastics Academy, and finished 2nd in the 2009 Oklahoma State Gymnastics competition. Lyndee’s favorite events are beam and vault. She has also competed in the World Champion Hoop Dance Competition since the age of seven and has always finished in the top finalists. Lyndee is known for incorporating gymnastics into her hoop dance performance. Some of Lyndee’s accomplishments include:

- 5th grade: National American Indian Science & Engineering Fair, 1st place in Botany

- Age 9: Jr Olympic Level 4, 1st place New Mexico All-Around Gymnastics Champion
- Age 11: Jr Olympic Level 5, 1st place New Mexico All-Around Gymnastics Champion

Traditionally, Lyndee has learned the cultural and spiritual ways of her Native American people. As a baby, Lyndee was brought into the arena as a ‘buckskin’ dancer, and now wears the northern-style buckskin dress passed down to her by her aunt Gloria Tofpi – this dress is over 100 years old! Lyndee enjoys dancing all the styles of powwow dancing, and loves to sing traditional songs. She participates in the Native American Church, Ton-Kon-Gah, Oh-Ho-Mah Lodge, the Kiowa Gourd Dance, and the Sac and Fox ceremonial traditions.

Lyndee’s paternal grandparents are the late Lindy Tofpi (Kiowa) and Etta Wash-Tofpi (Northern Ute). Lyndee’s maternal grandparents are the late John J. McClelland (Sac & Fox) and the late Clarabell Emarthla-McClelland (Creek).

FROM THE INTERIEM EDITOR

I Just wanted to take the time to thank you all for your patience in this time of transition for the Sac & Fox News. I also would like to thank our previous editor for all of the hard work she put into the paper over the last year.

As you have noticed the format of the paper has changed. This is largely due to financial considerations and adjustments to make the paper more cost effective. I have also recently reworked the distribution list which is base on our new tribal enrolment data base and it is my hope that those of you who have not recieved the paper will begin receiving it.

It is my hope that you enjoy the new look of the paper and again I ask for your patience as the Nation is in the process of looking for a new editor. I love computers and design and have enjoyed the process of putting the paper together. Also there were 5 deaths in the tribe this month and they will be included in the July issue which should arrive on time.

Wally,

as our facilitator of this effort. He will be working closely with the Business Committee, tribal leadership, and our staff with this effort.

Above everything, we need your input. Our first task is to assemble a new and relevant Needs Assessment. This questionnaire will be mailed to tribal members and we are requesting you complete the questionnaire and mail it back by August 1st. At the Annual Powwow in July, our leadership team will be available to explain the Needs Assessment, why we are doing it, and to answer questions you might have. Again, each of you will be asked to complete the Needs Assessment and return it to us by August 1st.

As mentioned, in addition to the Business Committee, a Visioning Leadership Team will be named to lead the overall visioning process. This team will consist of 10-20 people. We hope to identify this team prior to the powwow, if possible. If not, then they will be named at Powwow.

The Visioning Leadership Team should represent the tribe in general, as well as our committees, Boards, and departments of our staff. We are seeking volunteers willing to commit to meeting certain criteria. The criteria are:

1. Time commitment (between now - October):
  - a. 1 hour - to take a Leadership Qualities survey online or on paper;
  - b. 3 hours - to participate in a Leadership Qualities feedback session;
  - c. 1 hour - at PowWow to answer questions at our ‘Visioning’ booth;
  - d. 12 hours - to attend three separate, four-hour work sessions during August and September to gather, sort, analyze and prioritize the Needs Assessment input received from tribal members; to compile recommendations for the 30-Year Vision, to prioritize the top areas, and to draft an overall tribal purpose statement based on the in-

- put from the questionnaire;
  2. Willingness to Champion the Visioning Effort with Tribal Members, willing to encourage tribal members to respond to the questionnaire where possible;
- The Business Committee is authorizing the Leadership Team participants to receive $50.00 for each of the four planned sessions, or a total of $200.00 to offset costs for participating on the Leadership Team.
- Once the Leadership Team has drafted the new Vision, its priorities and goals, the Business Committee will present it to the General Council for final approval. It is hoped this final approval will be accomplished early in the fourth quarter of 2009. This would provide the information needed to assemble a more specific 2010 business plan.

More information will be forthcoming as the Powwow approaches. Each one of you is invited to participate in helping us shape a current vision by completing the questionnaire. This will guide our tribal leadership in their decisions and efforts towards realizing our purposes and fullest potentials, both as a sovereign Nation, as a people, and as individuals.

If you are interested in participating on the Visioning Leadership Team, and feel you can fulfill the criteria, please notify Shanarae Boyd at shanarae.boyd@sacandfoxnation-nsn.gov.
